The Lucille LaVerne

"THE SILVER WEDDING."
The Lucille LaVerne stock company began their second week at the Auditorium yesterday with the production of the German-American comedy, "The Silver Wedding," featuring Thos. A. Wise and Miss LaVerne in the leading roles. Their personal success was immediate and complete while the play is a sweet and simple story of home life that appeals to all.

The plot concerns a good-natured, but stubborn, old German who allows a fancied grievance to estrange him from his family and most of the play is devoted to the efforts of his family and friends to win him back. There are no dramatic scenes, but plenty of amusing situations and lines. The last act is a reminiscence of the Thanksgiving dinner scene in "Shore Acres," and to those who remember the James Herne play no further praise is needed.

Mr. Wise is admirably suited to the amusing, yet lovable role of the (to quote the play) "pigheaded old Dutchman." You cannot help but like him all the while you are laughing at his absurd contrariness. His facial expressions, voice and portly figure are all admirably suited to the part. He occasionally struck a note of pathos that found instant response in the audience. From the opening scene until he is finally won by the cooing baby the delighted audience laughed its approval.

Miss LaVerne's success was none the less marked. This is the first role that has given her a chance and she will win many friends for her likeable portrayal of the talkative German housewife, Miss Blakeney.

Mr. Gordon is seen in the sentimental roles and both please immensely. Mae Codd has a juvenile comedy part and in several scenes with Mr. Wadsworth does splendidly. Other roles are in good hands and the baby, Dallas Bergi, behaved very nicely. The settings were homelike and realistic and the entire production throughout commendable.

TO SHOW FLORENCE.

Those who attend the Newman Traveltalk entitled "Florence and Venice" at the Oliver opera house, next Tuesday evening, November 4th, will see two of the most charming and unique cities in all the world. Few cities have had the good fortune to be favored with such an array of talented sons, few cities have had such absorbingly interesting histories, and none contain more magnificent art collections or more wonderful and imposing examples of medieval architecture. Hence no happier selection for a travel-lecture can be imagined and Dr. Newman has made the most of his opportunities as he considers the pictures, both still and motion picture, in his present course. They will portray the Uffizi and Pitti palaces and their art galleries, containing noted examples from Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci and others; the haunts of such notables as Dante, Savonarola, and Machiavelli; the cathedral, the baptistry and Giotto's campanile; Pisole and the monasteries of Le Carosio and Valombrosa; and the many other features which make of Florence the flower of fair cities as well as the city of fair flowers.

GENESIS.

The tremendous success which has attended screen plays of a psychological or social nature, written by J. Edgar Weber and produced and acted by the "Smalleys" of the Universal Rex company, promises to be eclipsed, if such a thing be possible, by some of their more recent big Western dramas imbued with elemental emotions. "Genesis-iv.9" has situations that are uncommon; the action unfolds itself in a sturdy manner equal to the efficient interpretation given the various roles by the Universal topnotch artists. That the staging and photography is highly artistic goes without saying. The feature will be shown at The Surprise Theater today.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Capacity audiences were again in attendance at the Majestic Sunday and the new comedy bill, "The Politicians," pleased immensely. Lots of harmless clowning is indulged in by the principal character who impersonates rival candidates. A burlesque boxing match between the democratic and citizens' candidates was a laughable feature. Miss Evelyn, as the suffragist aspirant for the office of mayor, made an interesting figure. The song numbers are many and all scored heavily, giving the chorus opportunity for varied and pleasing costume effects. Some local hits were made at the resident candidates but all in a friendly humor and the performance gave good satisfaction.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

The new bill at the Orpheum which opened Sunday is first class. Headed by one of Menlo Moore's latest productions and probably his best, the entire program is made up of acts that entertain. "A Bachelor's Dream" is an elaborate girl act, handsomely mounted with a special setting and costumes. Dan McCarty, impersonates the bachelor, while four of his former sweethearts appear before him in a dream. The girls are comely, wear a variety of attractive costumes and sing pleasingly. Two other male characters help out the little story and the whole act is clean, original and out of the ordinary. Chic and his family of chickens, offer a comedy bicycle act that is full of amusing bits, some good riding and a lot of harmless nonsense that keeps the audience interested and giggling most of the time. The employment of several freak wheels add to the novelty of the act. Charles Kenna comes back in his familiar character of the fakir and talks the audience into believing him amusing. Some of his jokes are very good and some of them very ancient. His ridicule of members of the orchestra could be eliminated with benefit. Gertrude Flske opens with a ballad that should be retired on a pension, but sings pleasingly. During her second number she is interrupted by a bright youth in one of the aisles, who indulges in some lively repartee, sings and helps bring the act to a pleasing close from the stage. The Townsends, Hawaiian singers and instrumentalists, seen at another house during the summer, offer a delightful novelty with their native songs and guitar playing.

AT INDIANA.

Yesterday afternoon and evening Jack Lewis and company presented a screaming farce comedy at the Indiana theater. "Cherry Valley" is a story told in the land of Missouri, full of the quaint dialect of that state, and the scenes are elaborate and typical. Mr. Lewis is ably assisted by Miss Frost in this clever little comedy, together with the entire company in humorous roles. The dramatic situations are tense but quiet, and the plot cleverly woven about the characters.

AUSTRALIA TO UNITE LOANS.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 3.—The Australian federal government has decided to introduce immediately legislation to provide for the consolidation of the loans on the various states. It proposes that if a state wishes the common wealth to borrow on its behalf the federal treasurer shall do so, but the bill is generally in the direction of a gradual absorption of the existing debts, which amount approximately to $1,275,000,000.
